'BEWARE THE EYES OF MARS': A Musical About Alienation

January 25, 2006—Ft. Lauderdale, FL

Director, Composer David Mann announces the opening of a brand new musical. With space-age sets like "Star Wars," fabulous 'Broadway-quality' presentation like "Hairspray," and a deeper meaning like "Hair," he proceeds to create something brand new. Profits benefit the charity "Kids in Distress." Sure to become a cult-classic, this fantastical family-friendly performance is as memorable as "Little Shop of Horrors" and includes a cast of 24 players, 24 songs, plenty of wild costumes, sets and multi-media fun!

FEELING ALIENATED? Then you'll fit right in. Join Captain Mars (Kristopher Yager Hyland) and his futuristic alien crew as they crash on Earth in the groovy 1960's for the adventure of a lifetime. Mars meets a golden-haired beauty, Little Nikki (Kaila Katesh Freas), a ditty hippie-chick to guide him along as he realizes that he is different from the earthlings. He feels alienated, an outcast; The audience learns with him about acceptance, unity, diversity and love.

Meanwhile, Little Nikki's nemesis, Ms. Lady Love (Latricia Mobley) is also after Mars. Mars realizes that he has the power to help the peaceniks and save the Earth from alien invasion, but will he sacrifice his freedom to save the galaxy?
